MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Investment Objective and Strategies

The ETF seeks to generate long-term growth of income and capital by investing primarily in a concentrated portfolio of publicly-traded equity securities of Canadian companies that pay a dividend.

In order to achieve its investment objective, the ETF invests in dividend-paying equity securities selected primarily from the S&P/TSX Composite Total Return Index (the “Index”). The ETF may also invest up to 10% of its NAV, at the time of purchase, in dividend-paying equity securities that are part of the MSCI ACWI Index, a recognized global equity index. The ETF invests in a concentrated portfolio of securities. The number of portfolio holdings usually ranges between 20 and 30 different securities. The securities held in the portfolio are actively managed by the Portfolio Manager. Approximately every three months, subject to market conditions and Manager discretion with respect to specific timing, the portfolio is rebalanced so that all of the securities in the portfolio are approximately equally weighted at that time. The Manager has implemented thresholds around equal weighted rebalancing in order to reduce trading volumes.

The ETF typically invests in securities of companies in six or more industry sectors. The Portfolio Manager uses its proprietary quantitative methodology (the “Methodology”) to identify investment opportunities that exhibit the largest expected dividend growth over the next year. Fundamental analysis is performed to confirm the results of the quantitative methodology and to make the final selection of the portfolio holdings.

Risk

The risks of investing in the ETF remain as discussed in the Prospectus. There were no significant changes to the ETF that materially affected the ETF’s overall level of risk during the reporting period.

Results of Operations

The ETF’s net assets increased from $12.2 million at the end of 2023, to $26.0 million as of December 31, 2024. The increase was primarily due to subscriptions.

The trailing 12-month median dividend growth of the portfolio companies was 13.3% at December 31, 2024 compared to the S&P/TSX Composite Total Return Index (the “Index”) constituent median of 5.0%.

The ETF underperformed the Index during the period. For the 12-month period ended December 31, 2024, the ETF returned 13.8%. The Index returned 21.7% during the same period.

Our strategy looks different than the Canadian index – we had no exposure to Shopify or the Energy sector and were underweight the Financials sector (we added our only exposure to banks in Q4 with our investment in EQB Inc.). In the highly cyclical Canadian market, short-term noise can often drown out strong fundamentals. Despite a challenging year for our performance relative to the S&P/TSX Composite, we remain focused on our process that has delivered attractive long-term results.

The strategy’s returns benefited from strong selection in Consumer Discretionary (Dollarama) and Industrials, where Element Fleet, Waste Connections and Thomson Reuters all helped. The performance of our positions in the financial sector also helped drive strategy returns. We think these returns demonstrate our ability to find great companies beyond traditional portfolio holdings like the big 6 banks.

From an absolute return perspective, Brookfield Corp, Dollarama Inc. and TMX Group Ltd. were among the largest contributors during the period.

For the 12-month period ended December 31, 2024 (the “Period”)

Open Text Corp., Enghouse Systems Ltd. and Premium Brands Holdings were among the largest detractors on an absolute basis during the period.

During the year, new holdings in Broadcom Inc., EQB Inc and TFI International Inc. were initiated. Visa Inc., Canadian Pacific Kansas City Ltd., TELUS Corp. and InterRent Real Estate Investment Trust were eliminated from the ETF to fund the purchases.

We also rebalanced several names as part of our regular quarterly rebalancing process which brings positions back to an equal weight (4.54%) if they exceed certain thresholds.

Recent Developments

The Bank of Canada responded to the lack of growth in the Canadian economy with five rate cuts during 2024. After two years of underperforming the index, the Financials sector had a strong year and, given its large weight in the TSX, played a large part in the broad market’s gains for the year. Additionally, it was a strong year for the commodity sectors as both Energy and Materials returned over 20%, and the Technology sector’s gains were paced by Shopify which rose by almost 50% during the year.

Our investment approach is built on the belief that companies with strong free cash flow, disciplined capital allocation, and a track record of growing their dividends at high rates are uniquely positioned to deliver superior risk-adjusted returns over time. These businesses tend to exhibit resilient operating performance across economic cycles and align management incentives with shareholder interests through sustainable dividend policies.

We believe dividend growth rates are good predictors of returns over time and that the fastest dividend growers should produce even better results than the broader dividend growth universe. Our extensive research confirms this, and it is the reason our investment process begins with using artificial intelligence to find the fastest dividend growers of tomorrow.

While periods of underperformance are challenging, they often create opportunities for patient investors who remain disciplined and grounded in their investment approach. We think the current period of underperformance suggests upcoming tailwinds for equal weight and dividend growth strategies given the historic outperformance of each over time, especially after periods of underperformance. We think sticking to a consistent evidence-based approach is the right course of action.

The sound fundamentals of our portfolio companies give us confidence that better days await. Our holdings in aggregate grew their dividends by over 13% over the last twelve months, as compared to just 5% for the S&P/TSX Composite. The dividend growth of our portfolio companies was on the back of results of median ~9% sales growth and ~4% earnings growth versus ~5% and ~0.5% for the broad market, respectively.

As we continue to navigate a trying period for the Canadian economy, we continue to believe our differentiated offering of a concentrated portfolio of high quality, high dividend growth businesses will benefit investors going forward.

Subsequent to year-end, there were changes in the members of the Independent Review Committee. Effective December 31, 2024, Lorna Johnson ceased to be a member of the IRC as her term ended. As a consequence of the vacancy, Andrew Deluce was appointed as a member of the IRC effective January 1, 2025. Effective January 17, 2025, Martin Ritchie ceased to be a member of the IRC as his term ended. As a consequence of the vacancy, Kevin Drynan was appointed as a member of the IRC effective January 18, 2025.

The ETF paid management fees to the Manager, inclusive of HST, of $168,630 for the period.

The Manager has chosen to absorb certain operating expenses for which the ETF is responsible.

The Manager has appointed the Independent Review Committee (IRC) established under the Canadian Securities Administrators’ National Instrument 81-107 Independent Review Committee for Investment Funds. The mandate of the IRC is to review and provide recommendations or approval, as required, regarding certain conflict of interest matters referred to it by the Manager on behalf of its managed ETFs. The ETF pays a management fee, plus applicable taxes, to the Manager based on the annual rate of 0.70%, before GST/HST, of the net asset value of the ETF. This management fee is

1. This information is derived from the ETF’s audited annual financial statements. The net assets per security presented in the financial statements may differ from the net asset value calculated for ETF pricing purposes. An explanation of any differences can be found in the notes to the financial statements.

2. The ETF made distributions on a notional basis. A notional distribution is when the units from a reinvested distribution are immediately consolidated with the units held prior to the distribution and the number of units held after the distribution is identical to the number of units held before the distribution.

3. Net assets and distributions are based on the actual number of units outstanding at the relevant time. The increase/decrease from operations is based on the weighted average number of units outstanding over the financial period. This table is not intended to be a reconciliation of beginning to ending net assets per unit.

1. This information is as of the end of the period shown.

2. The management expense ratio (“MER”) is based on expenses for the stated period, excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs, and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period. The Manager may, at its discretion and without notice to unitholders, waive or absorb certain operating expenses. MER includes the waiver or absorption of certain operating expenses by the Manager, while the MER before absorption shows the MER prior to operating expenses being waived or absorbed by the Manager.

3. The ETF’s portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the ETF’s Portfolio Manager manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the ETF buying and selling all the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher the ETF’s portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the ETF in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of the ETF.

4. The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

DISCLOSURES

The S&P/TSX Composite Total Return Index measures the performance of the broad Canadian equity market, including dividend re-investment, in Canadian dollars. This index is provided for information only and comparisons to the index have limitations. The benchmark is an appropriate standard against which the performance of the ETF can be measured over longer time periods as it represents the primary investment universe from which Bristol Gate selects securities. However, Bristol Gate’s portfolio construction process differs materially from that of the benchmark and the securities selected for inclusion in the ETF are not influenced by the composition of the benchmark. For example, the ETF is a concentrated portfolio of approximately equally weighted dividend-paying equity securities, rebalanced quarterly whereas the benchmark is a broad stock index (including both dividend and non-dividend paying equities) that is market capitalization weighted. As such, ETF performance deviations relative to the benchmark may be significant, particularly over shorter time periods. The ETF has concentrated investments in a limited number of companies; as a result, a change in one security’s value may have a more significant effect on the ETF’s value.
